I must tell you that the proposed MS settlement must be changed. I've work in the Computer industry for over 15 years and the entire time I have had to put up with MS's unfair practices. I remember 10 years ago when MS was in the practice of 'Shipping' press releases for products they had not even started to develop only to stall companies from looking at competing products.

It really does not matter what you impose on MS because, just like in the past, they will not follow any rules placed on them.

They need to be stopped and be told they cannot ignore the courts as they have in the past.
